A Unicorn That Learns How To Swim

By: Kyleigh Rediger
It was a warm summer day. Bella was watching all the other unicorns swim at the pool. A group of girl unicorns came past and laughed at Bella standing outside the fence because she didn’t know how to swim.
Bella went home and ran upstairs to her room. Her mom came in and asked what was wrong. Bella told her mom what had happened at the pool. Bella’s mom decided to sign her up for swimming lessons.
At her first swimming lesson Bella was nervous. She jumped into the pool and was splashing around. The other unicorns were laughing at her. They said she will never win the race at the end of their swimming lessons. Bella started to cry.
She told herself she wasn’t going to give up. Bella practiced every day until the big race. Bella even practiced in her sleep.
It was race day! Bella’s heart was pounding. She heard the whistle blow and leaped into the pool. Bella swam as fast as she could. She won the race!
Her prize was a huge ice cream sundae. Bella shared it with the other girls that laughed at her before. They all became friends.
