Being a Nice Friend

By,

Lydia Wilhelm

Dictated to her Mom, May 4, 2020
There were two horses named Emma and Sally. Emma was kind and nice. Sally was mean and wanted everything her way. Both of them were queens who lived in castles in England.
One day Emma came to Sally's castle to visit her. Sally said to Emma, "Get away. Get away. I don't want you here."

Emma said, "Sally, I just want to come to your place, see your castle," and talk to you."

"I do not want you here, Emma," said Sally, "because I don't want anyone to see my old, dirty castle. Just leave, Emma, and don't come back until we are both 90 years old."
Emma said, "I’m sorry, but I just wanted to come and talk to you. I will leave you alone until we are both 90 years old."
Many years passed. Emma and Sally were both 90 years old. Emma came back to see Sally. Emma said, "Hello, Sally. We are both 90 now. Are you still going to be mean or are you going to change your ways?"
Sally answered, "I will change my ways, Emma. Thank you for coming over."

Then Emma and Sally went to Emma's castle and had tea.

THE END